Progress Made On New Golf Course

That Didsbury is becoming golf-minded is proved by the fact that approximately $700.00 has been subscribed toward the establishment of a nine-hole golf course at the Butte.

A seven-acre tract of land on the east of the Butte has been purchased. The fence has been moved and the land prepared for the seeding of grass. Trees have also been planted to beautify the course.

The tract of the land west of the race track will also be levelled and seeded, and when completed will add considerably to the appearance of the ground around the Butte.

Care has been taken in laying out the course not to interfere with visitors to the Butte.

While it will not be possible to play the whole course this season, it is expected that play on five holes will be available this summer.

The committee was much gratified with ready response of the business men and others in subscribing so generously to the project which they thought would be a decided asset to the community.

Several subscriptions were received from outside business firms.

Weddings

CALLIE SPENCE

A wedding of interest took place at Central United Church, Calgary, May 27, when Barbara Mary Peterkin Spence, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Spence, of Didsbury, was united in marriage to Private J. Callie, C.A.S.C., second son of Mrs. Callie of Calgary and the late Mr. J. M. Callie of Macleod. The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. D. Whyte Smith of Didsbury.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in an Alice Blue crepe ensemble with matching accessories. Her corsage consisted of sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley. Her only attendant was Miss Peggy Morgan of Bentley, whose choice was a dusky rose crepe afternoon dress with matching accessories, and her corsage being sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Private Ross Wallace, C.A.S.C., assisted the groom.

The reception was held at the Empress Hotel, covers being laid for thirty-five guests.

Mrs. Spence, who received with her daughter, chose a navy blue two-piece ensemble with matching hat and corsage of red roses and lily-of-the-valley.

The groom's mother wore a dress of figured crepe and her corsage was made up of lily-of-the-valley and red roses.

After the ceremony of cutting the cake, the toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. W. A. Austin of Didsbury.

For travelling the bride chose a brown figured jersey suit with small hat to match and beige top coat trimmed with light squirrel marten. Mr. and Mrs. Callie motored to Buffalo where they will spend part of their honeymoon, and later go on to Macleod. On their return they will take up residence at Red Deer.

Didsbury Jottings

By A.C.H.

And herewith I write unto you a parable. One man planteth a lawn; another man planteth unto himself a garden. He who planteth the lawn, moweth it often, even unto exhaustion. He who planteth the garden, hoe-eth it often, and watereth it with ardor.

And verily I say unto you, that the growth upon the lawn is tall and verdant, even unto six inches in height; and the growth upon the garden is short, even nigh unto extinction.

Brethren, think on these things

Didsbury people ran true to form on Saturday; it was babies' day. The I.O.D.E., aided by the Junior C.G.I.T., were out tagging for hospital nursery supplies. They report the magnificent sum of $88.29 taken in, almost four dollars more than last year. And in these times when everyone is dipping down deep and often, that is a very creditable sum, even for babies. Thank you, everybody.

China And The War

THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED NATIONS are determined to rid the world of the Axis threat to freedom and progress. Among these people are many where countries have been invaded, and who have suffered greatly. China is one of the nations which has been most severely affected. Invaded by Japan sometime before the war in Europe commenced, she has resisted stubbornly, and overcome enormous difficulties. After the attack on Pearl Harbour her hopes of Allied assistance were encouraged, but transportation problems have intervened, for since 1942 China has been cut off from communication with the outside world except by the dangerous and difficult air route over the Himalaya mountains. Nearly all of her heavy industries were taken over by the Japanese when they captured the Yangtze Valley, and Chinese forces have suffered greatly from lack of mechanical equipment. Nevertheless they have fought gallantly and have won widespread admiration and respect.

Plants Set Up In Wilderness

It is hoped that it will not be long before communications are re-established, and China can be furnished with military supplies by the other United Nations, as has been the case with Russia. However, great efforts have been made to produce as much as possible within the country and the results have been called "a triumph of human endeavour and resource over adverse conditions." It was found possible to move a small amount of plant equipment to the interior before the Japanese advance, and new industrial areas have been set up in regions formerly considered to be wilderness. Caverns, tunnels and artificial caves in the sides of hills now house scientific laboratories and valuable machinery, and many up-to-date plants are now being operated in these strange surroundings.

New Resources Are Discovered

While China's war production is not large when compared to that of Britain or the United States, it represents a valiant effort on the part of Chinese engineers, technicians and scientists, and promises much for her future industrial development. The opening up of new territory in the interior has led to the exploration of many unknown areas, particularly in the Northwest, and has resulted in the discovery of rich natural resources. Deposits of iron ore, gold, coal and mineral oil are being tapped, and power stations, factories, and railways are being established. In spite of great difficulties, eighty per cent. of China's pre-war industries are in operation, and plans have been made for continued expansion. These include the production of 3,000,000 tons of steel, 80,000,000 tons of coal, 300,000 tons of shipping, and other projects of similar magnitude. It is to be hoped that China will soon be free, and that her industrial development may continue under happier circumstances.

Help For Refugees

Britain Has Had Outstanding Record During This War

Britain's record as a refuge for the victims of Nazi oppression is one that should not be allowed to become forgotten. It is particularly true when the size of the island, and the wartime conditions are remembered—stringent restrictions in food and clothing, overcrowding with Allied troops, and total preoccupation with the prosecution of the war. Despite all this, Britain admitted some 60,000 non-British refugees between May, 1940, and April, 1943, since when, according to an announcement made last December, they were still being admitted at an average rate of 800 a month.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q.—How much tea and coffee do I get now that the ration is increased?
A.—Each coupon will be good for 4 ounces of tea or one pound of coffee. One coupon only will become good at a time. Coupons will become due twice a month, on the second and fourth Thursdays of the month.

Q.—How can I find out when my ration coupons become valid? I always seem to be losing track of the various dates?

A.—That seems to be a very common problem and yet the information is readily available. Many newspapers, for instance, print a ration coupon calendar around the first day of each month. I would suggest that you find out when and where this appears, then clip it out and tack it up near your shopping list. Soldier's Wife's radio program gives ration coupon bulletins every Thursday morning. Help your stockkeeper and have a good knowledge of your ration book before going shopping.

Q.—Is it necessary to advise the ration authorities when I change my name and address?

A.—Yes, it is very important. Either write or call and advise them of your local ration board and advise them of the necessary changes they should make in their records. The ration book serial number should also be given.

Q.—I want to buy a new milking machine. Where do I apply for permission?

A.—Apply to the nearest office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board for a form which you must fill out and sign, and also have the dealer from whom you intend to make the purchase sign it. This form is to be submitted to the farm machinery rationing representative of the Board.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlet "Consumer's News" or the Blue Book (the book in which you keep track of your ceiling prices) mentioning the name of this paper to the nearest wartime prices and trade board office in your province.

Canadian Television

Must Wait Until After The War To Secure Equipment

G. W. Olive, chief engineer of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, said in a statement that "any plans the CBC might have concerning the introduction of television must wait until after the war when equipment can be made available."

Mr. Olive made the statement commenting on reports that a television transmitting station would be built atop Mount Royal in Montreal. "It is not likely that television equipment will be available for at least two years after the war and that any extensive television coverage can be given in Canada for at least 10 years following its introduction," he said.

Air Cadets

Summer Program Will Include Flights For Senior Members

Flights in R.C.A.F. aircraft for air cadets will be part of the 1944 summer camp program, it was announced by the Air Cadet League of Canada today. Arrangements are being made to give familiarization flights to senior cadets who qualify in accordance with requirements.

Cadets will receive flights as a reward for faithful attendance at squadron parades and progress in training. A waiver form signed by his parent must be obtained by each cadet who qualifies and is recommended for flights by his commanding officer. Trips are expected to be of thirty minutes duration or less and will be carried out within a radius of twenty miles from the station.

Speaking for the Air Cadet League, President Arthur L. Melling of Montreal said: "This is a concession which we have long desired and I am convinced that it will have a tremendous influence on future progress of the air cadet movement throughout Canada."

"Our boys are keen to fly and will strive to qualify for this coveted privilege," said Mr. Melling. "Moreover, in a comprehensive survey covering many thousands of parents 66.3% were willing to have their boys taken on properly supervised flights."

It is expected that several thousand air cadets who attend camp at R.C.A.F. stations during the coming summer months will have an opportunity to fly in service aircraft.

Much Is Required

Rehabilitation Of Europe Is Going To Be Big Job

According to the estimates of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration (commonly known as UNRRA) total import requirements to help rehabilitation of Europe in the post-war period will require from all sources, 45 million tons of foodstuffs, feeds, oils, fats, chemicals, fertilizers, rubber, wool, paper, hides, leather, clothing, coal, metals, minerals, machinery, vehicles, seeds, drugs and hospital supplies. One of Canada's major contributions will be food, especially wheat. Dr. G. R. H. Burt, dominion deputy minister of agriculture, who is chairman of the agricultural food board, was head of the Canadian contingent at the United Nations food conference held at Hot Springs, Va., in May, 1943, at which a working basis for close co-operation and continued collaboration among all the United Nations was established. The United Nations have agreed to bring relief to victims of war immediately upon liberation of the countries enslaved by the enemy.

Plastics In Nylon Form Go On Active Air Duty In The Manufacture Of Parachutes

A YOUNG Canadian pilot bails out of his plane and parachutes down to the friendly, green earth near a sleepy English village after a scramble over the Channel. The material for that pilot's parachute, his life preserver, had to be light and compact and yet have great strength and elasticity to withstand the impact shock which occurred when the chute opened. This is why nylon is used in the making of parachute canopy cloth, ropes, cords, webbing and threads.

Nylon possesses the characteristics to a greater degree than any other natural or synthetic fibre. It is lighter in weight, more uniform in quality, and 50 per cent stronger than silk.

The name nylon is given to a whole family of materials. Other raw materials may be used for making different kinds of nylons, but for textiles and bristles, it is produced from coal, air and water.

Among its multitudinous uses are knitted goods, woven dress materials, lace, bathing suits, upholstery, gloves, sewing thread, fishing lines and leaders, and all types of bristles. Nylon has also been used with wide acclaim by surgeons and physicians for surgical sutures. Doctors have found it to be even smooth, making it less irritating than natural gut to sensitive body tissues.

At the present time, aside from parachutes, tire cords and tow ropes for fighting men, it has been found that soldier's shoe laces made from this material won't disintegrate with the moisture and mildew of the tropics. Extra fine cloth spun from nylon threads can be used to filter blood plasma.

After the war, the Dominion's tennis players will welcome the advent of racquets strung with sturdy, water-repellent nylon that won't be ruined if caught in a summer shower. Musicians will be using instruments strung with nylon strings that won't loosen or contract with changing atmospheric conditions, and yet will have the same perfect tone that can be obtained from gut strings.

An Extinct Bird

The Dodo Lacked Defense And So Was Finally Extirpated

The bird life of many oceanic islands is seriously endangered today. One wonders whether some kinds can survive the direct and indirect competition with man and his works.

Will they join the ranks of the Dodo? Perhaps some people will assume that the term "Dodo" designates a mythical creature. This is not so. The Dodo once lived on the island of Mauritius in the Indian Ocean. It was, in a sense, a porous pigeon, approximating a swan in bulk.

About the middle of the seventeenth century, colonizers introduced dogs and swine to the island of Mauritius, and by 1681 the Dodo was no more. Its rapid extermination may not have been due so much to the ferocity of the newcomers as to the defencelessness of the bird. In addition to its inability to fight or flee, it laid its lone egg in the grass on open ground where it was easily destroyed.

Bones of the Dodo were found in considerable abundance during the nineteenth century in a swamp on Mauritius. Nearly complete skeletons, such as the one in the Museum, are rare.

ALFALEA FOR HENS

Grass-fed hens are invariably in good plumage, and good plumage is an indication of good health. One of the best assets a poultryman can have is a new lot of dark green, short cut, early cut alfalfa, or clover with leaves and tendrils intact.

Moulded Plywood

New Method Will Be Used By Designers Of Furniture

Snaking into the house with one's shoes in one's hand will not be such a hazardous business after the war because sharp corners on furniture seem to be in the wane. There will have to be a new alibi to replace the one for the black eye caused by "bumping into the sharp corner on a high chest of drawers."

Moulding plywood, a stunt learned when Canadian furniture men began faking parts for airplanes, is the reason for the development of the new designs.

Formerly "rounded corners" were achieved in veneer finishes by cutting the desired shape from the solid block of wood and then bending one ply of veneer around the block. In using several ply of veneer it has been necessary to use saw cuts to get the wood to bend.

A lot of good furniture has been and is still being made by these two methods. However, the new trick offers designers a little more scope, is quicker, will be more economical and makes even stronger furniture.

The new development enables craftsmen to mould several sheets of plywood to the desired shape by applying pressure at the same time a new type of glue is being applied hot to hold the sheets together. When the glue dries and cools the moulded plywood sheets have taken the pattern and that shape they will stay.

Manufacturers are enthusiastic about this new method of handling wood. When the end of the war provides the time and the materials many of them are planning decided changes in some types of furniture manufacture. Furniture made by this process combines the qualities of lightness of weight and amazing strength.

Work for the consumers market which has been done in Canada with moulded plywood has been mostly on small radio cabinets up to date.

The R.A.F. said that destroyed Germany's Meine and Elder dams in May, 1943, was planned with engineering exactness a year in advance.

Spreading Weeds

How Weed Seeds Are Distributed Over The Country

New weeds are introduced on farms with imperfectly cleaned cereals, clover or other commercial seeds, and with commercial feeding stuffs which often contain vital weed seeds, states the National Weed Committee. They are spread from district to district through the various transportation facilities, are disseminated within a locality in stable manure from towns and cities, and are distributed from farm to farm through threshing machines and from field to field by farm implements. The wind carries weed seeds long distances, not only in summer but with drifting soil and over the surface of the snow in winter. Streams distribute them along their courses. They are spread by herbivorous animals and seed feeding birds, through the stomachs of which the seeds pass undigested, or the seeds attach themselves by special contrivances, such as hooked and barbed hairs and spines to passing animals. They are often carried by the coats and clothes of men.

Russia's Transportation System Has Been Very Well Maintained Despite Tremendous Difficulties

"COLOSSUS with feet of clay" was the phrase applied in the days of the Czars, to Russia's transportation system. When Hitler invaded Russia, transportation experts expected that the "feet of clay" would speed the collapse of Soviet resistance. But most of the Russian rolling stock was evacuated ahead of the crushing Germans.

To Pump Water

London Taxpayers Paying For A Water Wheel That Hasn't Existed For 150 Years

London's taxpayers voted a mild protest when they discovered they are paying $7,500,000 for a water wheel that hasn't existed for the past 150 years.

Henry Berry, chairman of the Metropolitan Water Board, disclosed at a board meeting that the water wheel was torn down along with the old London Bridge in the 18th Century, but that the city's taxpayers have been paying $15,000 annually for it ever since.

Worse than that, he revealed, the instalments have another 140 years to run.

The wheel was built by Peter Morice in 1583 to pump water from the Thames, giving London its first mechanical water supply. Morice cannyly exacted a bargain from the city aldermen whereby London promised to pay him and his heirs and assigns $15,000 annually for a period of 500 years. So far, the city has paid about $5,500,000 on the contract and the total will be about $7,500,000 if it is permitted to run its full term.

The instalments now are being paid to about 1,500 persons, none of whom are descendants of the hard-headed builder. His direct heirs apparently sold their 500-year rights for ready cash.

Berry estimated it would cost London about $500,000 to buy up the remaining rights to the wheel that isn't there.

"Speaking as an engineer," he said, "I can't help being glad that an engineer made a good bargain for once."

"But as a public representative," he added ruefully, "I denounce the bargain on all scores."

SAVING IN STEEL

Shells are no longer made from solid steel, but from more accurately forged billets. This alone has saved England 400,000 lbs. of steel and no less than 18 million man-hours in the production of just one range of shells, not to mention the substantial savings in fuel.

There are more than 3,500 species of ants.

As the Red Army retreated more and more goods were shifted from rail to river and canal systems. A steady stream of heavy trucks, tractors and motor driven equipment flooded in from Russia's allies and added mobility to Red Army operations.

Last summer, at the height of the swift advances against the enemy, the first real shadow of railway trouble appeared in the Russian invasion, when more and more railway mileage was recaptured and had to be used with the available equipment on hand. The retreating Germans added and are continuing to add to Russia's difficulties by using a machine which rips the rail ties. This means that tracks have to be completely rebuilt. Because of this situation, last September the railroads were militarized and some million and a half workers were put in uniform. Top personnel were given military titles and by the end of the year, 10,000 railway workers had received military decorations.

Regular service from the various cities recaptured has taken place soon after liberation. And even during long sieges, railway communication has been maintained. For instance, the temporary winter rail road which was laid across the ice of Lake Ladoga. Over it supplies were carried to the besieged city of Leningrad. It is now famous throughout the world, and it shows Russia's determination to beat back the enemy.

The World of Wheat
by H. G. L. StrangeWHEAT SURPLUS AND DEFICIENCY

A short time ago everyone was talking about a world wheat surplus that, it was said, could not be cleared for years to come; yet today fears are being expressed of a possible shortage of wheat.

The truth is, there is no reason for either of these fears, provided natural governing forces are permitted to function. The governing forces are Price and Free Trade. Whenever there is a surplus, if price is permitted naturally to fall somewhat, then bread and flour become cheaper, people use more, and the surplus would soon be cleared if trade is free; and conversely, when there is fear of a shortage, if price is permitted to rise, then people use less wheat, flour and bread, and feed less to livestock, so again the condition soon corrects itself. Today much wheat is being fed to livestock. Any wheat deficiency, therefore, could soon be corrected by using less wheat for animal feeding by, if necessary, reducing livestock production. In wartime this is easily done by tightening up rationing on meats, which would not seriously harm anyone on this continent.

When cereal grains are fed to livestock, an acre of land will feed only one quarter as many people as when the grains are made into flour, bread or porridge for direct human consumption.

Several Trips Now
Operating Weekly
For Civilian Mails

A further improvement of space devoting Trans-Atlantic Air Mail Service is now in effect according to an announcement by Postmaster General Mulock. He states that a point has been reached whereby citizens are now assured of service several times a week to the United Kingdom for Air Mail prepaid at the regular Trans-Atlantic rate of 30 cents per 1/2 ounce.

The new schedule will be welcomed by correspondents, providing as it does an additional link with the old land for the exchange of civilian correspondence, and will facilitate the movement of the ever growing air mail volume overseas.

With the coming of summer, bringing with it improved flying conditions, patrons are assured of a greater degree of regularity in schedule and efficiency in operation.

War-time restrictions prohibit the publication of the dates and times of departure and arrival.

In conjunction with Trans-Atlantic Air Mail Service, the connecting link with the Trans-Canada Air Mail network will open up tremendous time-saving possibilities to all sections of Canada. In preparing overseas Air Mail the public should bear in mind that the use of light-weight stationery saves valuable space on Trans-Atlantic planes and at the same time saves the sender money in postage.

It is suggested that Air Mail to civilians in the United Kingdom bear the usual Air Mail sticker and be endorsed "Via Trans-Atlantic Air Mail".

I had a nightmare...

I dreamed that I paid $5.00 for a haircut and $50.00 for a pair of cardboard shoes. I dreamed that we had no wartime controls on prices, profits or wages, and that we hadn't had the sense to organize the distribution of supplies all the way down the line...

I dreamed that because everyone was making more money and spending it, prices were skyrocketing.

all the stores looked like "fire" sales... with people scrambling to buy before prices went still higher...

panicky people were buying things they didn't need, and hoarding everything they could get their hands on...

I dreamed that everybody had to fight to get more money... and that in this mad race, wages and salaries were falling behind.

I dreamed the hand of everyone was against his neighbour, with each of us blaming the other fellow for his troubles.

with everybody for himself... no matter what it cost in the long run... and no matter how it hurt the war effort.

THEN... THANK GOODNESS - I WOKE UP!

to realize with relief that I live in a country where things are sane and stable... where the cost of living has been kept within bounds.

to realize that prices and wages production costs and selling prices - are inseparably linked together.

to realize that without the safeguards that have headed off inflation, my nightmare might have become a reality!

to remind myself that the danger is still pressing and that we must continue to hold firm... and that means everybody must play fair and do his part by not trying to get some temporary, fancied advantage at the expense of his fellow-Canadians.

This advertisement is one of a series being issued by the Government of Canada to emphasize the importance of preventing further increases in the cost of living now and deflation later.

Cars of Future Will Be Marvels According To Forecasts

Post-war automobiles, profiting from wartime electronics, can be equipped to print little newspapers by facsimile radio, receive newsreels by television, heed road instructions from radio police, turn on lights at darkness automatically, and observe red and green traffic signals on the dashboard—with sound effects of music to focus attention.

This forecast was made recently before the New York Electronic Society by Dr. Orestes H. Caldwell, editor of Electronic Industries, who also added that electronic photocells will report your speed to police—Christian Science Monitor.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

FOR GOD AND JAMES

By FRANK CLEVELAND

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Jim told me all about that terrible time he found the purse with a thousand dollars. Jim is a shoe-repair man in a village down here on the Texas coast. Years ago, people began calling him Honest Jim. The lines of his face were as good and comforting as an old homestead. After talking with him five minutes, you no longer felt the world was getting worse.

People would tell little things about him, in the affectionate way they sometimes have, to show how they believed in him. A neighbor told me once that Jim "lived his religion." Somehow, the expression did not sound smug and trite.

The trouble about the purse came up this way. Jim liked to fish. Before James, his only son, had gone away to school the two had fished together. Since then Jim had fished mostly alone. He would kiss his wife a gentle good-bye after lunch and ease into the lumpy cushions of his Model A, which would hop, skip and jump down to Jackson's Point on the bay.

One such afternoon he had been trying for red fish along that shell beach at the Point, when he stepped on a heavy leather bill-fold with a hand-carved Aztec calendar on the flap.

Jim granted softly as he opened it for he saw money. But when he found himself staring at ten one-hundred-dollar bills, his grunt became deep and a little frightened.

For Jim needed money. You see, James had returned to medical school pale and gaunt after a spell of malaria. His father had grieved to think of the kid going back to the grind in such shape, and shoving in a bakery after school to pay his bills. Holding the bills in his hand, Jim pictured James getting plenty of sleep, a chance to regain his strength, and an even break with the other fellows in his studies. The only other thing in his pocketbook was a photograph of a frail woman standing before a farmhouse.

Jim did some arguing with himself as he drove home. He wanted the money as much as he had ever wanted anything. Found money was anybody's money, he told himself. But then, because he was Honest Jim, he admitted that it was no more his than the money behind the bars of a teller's window.

Back home, he kept his secret. To satisfy his conscience he advertised in many papers, without revealing his identity or what the purse contained. But no answers came.

After two weeks he began to do some imaginary spending. Numbly, he would see James comfortably through medical school. One hundred would buy the skiff that Jim had wanted for many a year for the deep channels where the fish ran in great numbers.

But the thing that kept bothering Jim was that the money really wasn't his. No, even if he kept it a year, or longer, he knew that he would never feel that he owned it.

It worried him so much that he decided to forget by fishing. On his outing he came to a decision. Since there had been no claimants, and James needed the money now, Jim would send it to him immediately. Over-conscientious scruples must not stand in the way.

Just then a gull-flapping car pulled to a stop along the beach. A man climbed out and started slowly pacing the shell, his eyes searching every foot of it.

Jim's breath quickened in resentment and fear, for he knew this must be the owner of the purse, who had evidently missed reading the ads. Jim's first impulse was to flee. But that would be a give-away. No, he would stand his ground and tell nothing, for his son's sake.

The stranger came toward him. "Haven't seen anything of a bill fold around here, have you, friend?" The man looked like a ranchman.

"I won't tell him. I won't, I won't!" Jim was repeating to himself as the stranger spoke.

"I lost it about three weeks ago. I've been so in many different places I just didn't know where to look. Almost forgot I'd been down here. Reckon if it dropped here someone picked it up long ago." The man's dark eyes were pleading as they looked at Jim. His voice was as low and sad as the soft sweep of waves on the shore.

Then Jim remembered. When James had left for school a month before, he had said, "Never mind about money, Dad. You've given me something lots better—a good name. Good-bye, Honest Jim."

Jim's voice trembled now as he questioned the stranger. "What was it like? Was there much in it?"

"It was one of those Mexican purses. Aztec calendar on it. A photograph in it. . . ."

Jim's hand was shaking as it fumbled in his hip pocket. "Look like this."

"That's it, thank God." His brown hands clutched it, held it against his heart a moment, then brought out the picture and pressed it again and again to his lips. "You see?" the man finally explained, "my wife gave me this just before she died." His hand caressed the bill-fold. "This is my only good picture of her. God bless you, friend, for finding it. I wish I could show you how grateful I am. Why, maybe there's a way. This money. It's not much—take it—it's yours."

"Man, you're crazy! That's a thousand dollars!"

"I'd give a hundred thousand for this picture. All those San Juan oil wells are mine. And what do they mean to me with Mary gone? I'd give them all just to see her one moment. Here, for God's sake, take the money!"

And Jim took it, for God's sake and for James.

Use an overhand patch for a tear like this. It is not as strong as a hemmed patch but it is less conspicuous. Cut the tear in the fabric to a square or an oblong. Turn back the edges. Cut the patch slightly larger. Fit the patch exactly into the hole with its edges turned back as in the lower sketch. All the sewing is done on the wrong side of the garment. Overhand the patch in place with tiny stitches, as shown, on the wrong side. Overcast raw edges and press well. If the patching is carefully done, if thread and design of the patch are both matched with the garment, it is scarcely noticeable.

From A German's Diary

German Nazi Does Not Appear To Think Much Of His Country

A friend sends me this translation of a revealing extract from the diary of a German officer captured in Italy:

Yesterday evening, during the retreat, I broke finally and irrevocably with my old life. Gone are all the old values, all that was precious to me. In my soul only one thing remains, a hatred for the hostility of the German Army. What have we to fight for? Every one curses the Nazi Government, but few have the courage to turn against it. Why? Because the brutality and the power of oppression are still so strong. If opportunity offered, I would help strengthen the thousands who long for final collapse. If I survive to leave the field alive, at least I shall have seen through the faade of Nazi politics. I shall know the points at which the Nazis are weakest.

Why was I born a German? I feel myself always a slave.

My friend vouches for the authenticity of this document. The writer, I am told, was at one time a keen Nazi—Leeds Yorkshire Post.

Plight Of A Deer

Game Warden Finds A Buck Deer With Its Leg Caught By A Snare

The plight of a buck deer whose left front leg had become caught over his head by his antlers was discovered by game wardens.

The three-year-old black tail deer had been forced to move about on three legs for an estimated three months, Warden Vic Steele said. The leg hung over his head and the hoof dangled against the right foreleg.

Steele expressed the theory the leg was pinioned by the antlers in a fight with another buck or in the young buck's effort to free it from entangling tree branches.

Before freeing the leg, Steele and two companions made a picture of the buck, near the Mesa Verde national park in southwestern Colorado. Released, the leg hung helplessly as the buck limped off, but they saw the deer again later and he was bounding around.

Penguins always fight their way over ice to the sea to die.
